1 A GUIDELINE AND RECOMMENDATION to inform
2 land use and transportation planners working at regional, county,
3 and city levels of strategies to improve the health of residents
4 and communities throughout King County.

5 The Board of Health adopts guidelines that are intended to inform land use and 6 transportation planners working at regional, county, and city levels of strategies to improve the 7 health of residents and communities throughout King County. The guidelines focus on nine 8 areas: physical activity, nutrition, harmful environmental exposure, transportation-related injury, 9 violence-related injury, tobacco use, alcohol use, mental health and well-being, and health
10 services access. The guidelines are informed by the leading and actual causes of preventable
11 death and illness in King County. Each guideline also includes a rationale describing the link 12 between health and planning and a list of key healthy community elements. The guidelines apply 13 to all populations of King County; particularly the very young, the very old, those with 14 compromised health, and those living in harmful environments and near environmental hazards.

15 These groups merit special attention because they bear disproportionate rates of disease and 16 disability.
