Trails to Treatment is a guidebook for social service and healthcare professionals on how to help youth and adults access alcohol and drug services. It contains information on what treatment and support services are available, how to access those services, and how to pay for them.

This guidebook is NOT designed to be given to clients. It is meant to be a resource for front-line staff. All treatment services listed in this guidebook are for licensed facilities in King County only.

To make comments and suggestions for future revisions, please contact the HIV/AIDS Program. Additional copies are available at either agency below.

OVERVIEW OF THE TREATMENT SYSTEM

There are several categories of drug and alcohol treatment. Each type offers a different level of intensity and duration. Not everyone enters the treatment system at the same place. Many clients need only one type of treatment. Others may need to transition between several levels along the treatment continuum. A certified Chemical Dependency Counselor can help determine the most appropriate path of treatment.

Detox/Sobering Centers
Detoxification provides medical supervision while patients withdraw from alcohol and/or other drugs. Sobering centers offer a clean, secure environment in which inebriated persons can sleep off their alcohol intoxication. Sobering centers are not detox facilities. They only provide a safe place for clients to temporarily “sober up” rather than withdraw from alcohol completely. Detox does not address the psychological, social, or behavioral aspects of addiction, so it is not considered “treatment.” Often, however, it is a necessary first step towards treatment. Most inpatient and outpatient treatment programs will not accept clients until they are medically detoxed.

Outpatient Treatment
Outpatient treatment allows clients to live at home and/or work while participating in the program. Clients receive both individual and group counseling several days a week depending on their treatment plan. Some clients may start treatment on an outpatient basis. Others may be referred to outpatient after completing inpatient treatment.

Opiate Substitution Treatment
Opiate substitution treatment is considered a form of outpatient treatment. Clients receive an oral dose of a synthetic opiate to control opiate craving and manage withdrawal symptoms. Methadone must be dispensed at a licensed methadone clinic while buprenorphine can be prescribed by specially-licensed physicians. Clients may also engage in counseling to address psychological and behavioral factors of addiction.

Residential Treatment
This is a general term meaning that clients live at a special facility while receiving treatment. Each category of residential treatment offers a different length of stay and different intensity of services.

Inpatient Treatment
This is the most common type of residential treatment. People receive intensive treatment in a live-in treatment center, often called an “inpatient facility.” Treatment lengths vary from seven to thirty days, depending on individual needs. Inpatient treatment involves education, individual and group counseling, and sometimes family sessions. It provides a protective environment during the early stages of recovery.

Recovery House
A recovery house is a type of group housing that serves as a transition between a treatment facility and “normal” residential living. Clients receive counseling, social, recreational, and vocational assistance after inpatient treatment to help adjust to abstinence and to develop and practice additional relapse prevention skills.

Long-term Residential
These programs are designed for people significantly impaired by alcohol or drugs and who need help with self-care and personal guidance to maintain abstinence. Clients receive limited personal care services, counseling, and education. Some medical care is available on site.

PAYING FOR TREATMENT

There are several options to help pay for some or all program costs. These options include private pay, private insurance, veterans benefits, and public assistance. Not every treatment program accepts the same types of payment or funding. Before you make a referral, call the treatment program to make sure it accepts the types of resources available to your client.

OPTION #1 - Private Pay
The private pay costs for inpatient and outpatient programs vary based on many factors including program length. It’s best to call an agency directly for an estimate of costs.

Some programs offer a set fee for a range of services. Many programs also offer a sliding fee scale. This means that they look at how much money clients make, how many people clients support on that income, and a scale to determine how much clients should pay. Some agencies will also establish payment plans with clients.

OPTION #2 - Private Insurance
Insurance benefits vary greatly depending on the type of coverage. If clients have insurance, do not assume that it covers alcohol and drug treatment or clients’ first choice of treatment programs. A managed care plan will specify where and what type of treatment is covered. All plans will place a limit on the type and amount of coverage. Clients should look in their benefits book and call the company to verify coverage and to pre-authorize services.

OPTION #3 - Veterans Benefits
Veterans benefits are available to clients who have served in the military, whether active duty or not, except for those who were dishonorably discharged. Some documentation is required to get in, including DD214 (discharge papers).

Veterans Administration (VA) offers:
- detox
- outpatient treatment
- opiate substitution treatment

All services require a scheduled assessment. VA does not accept walk-ins for chemical dependency services. Call the Veterans Administration Puget Sound Health Care System at 206-764-2192 to make an appointment.
OPTION #4 - Medical Coupons
Maneuvering through the world of medical coupons can be confusing and frustrating. There are many different types of coupons that cover different chemical dependency services. The services covered by one coupon may not be covered by another. Treatment agencies may also have different wait lists for different coupons.

The term “medical coupons” should not be confused with the program called Medicaid (also called Title XIX). Medicaid is a federal program that provides medical benefits for disabled or low-income individuals who meet specific eligibility criteria. These include recipients of SSI (Supplemental Security Income) and TANF (Temporary Aid to Needy Families). Medicaid issues medical coupons which generally provide the broadest scope of medical coverage. However, other public assistance programs also issue their own medical coupons, usually with less coverage. Look in the upper right-hand corner of the coupon for one of the abbreviations below to determine the type of coupon. (For related information, see Option #7 - Treatment Expansion).

CNP (Categorically Needly Program)
_Coupons may say CNP or CNP-QMB_
This is the coupon under Medicaid. The most comprehensive treatment services are covered by CNP coupons. Clients eligible for public assistance but not a CNP coupon are still eligible for some public-funded treatment. Clients should ask their local CSO or treatment agency about this. Clients with CNP coupons can contact any outpatient treatment center directly. If clients need inpatient treatment, they can be referred by an outpatient program or contact an inpatient program directly. Treatment on demand is available for clients with this coupon.

GAX (General Assistance Expedited for Medical Disability)
GAX means that a client has applied for SSI and is presumed to be eligible. GAX can be used until SSI eligibility is finally determined. GAX coupons will cover the full scope of treatment services funded by CNP coupons (see above). GAX clients can go directly to the outpatient or inpatient treatment agency. Treatment on demand is available for clients with this coupon.

For outpatient treatment, CNP and GAX clients do not have to go to their local CSO for a referral.
MNP (Medically Needy Program)

Coupons may say MNP, MNP-QMB, MNA, MN-B, MN-H or MNS

Clients may qualify for the Medically Needy Program if they are permanently and totally disabled but do not qualify for federal income assistance programs because their income is too high. Typically, clients will have medical needs but not medical insurance. The MNP coupon comes with a spend-down requirement that works like an insurance plan’s deductible. Clients must spend a certain amount of money every 3 to 6 months before Medicaid will begin to cover expenses. Once the spend-down has been met, MNP coupons will pay for drug/alcohol treatment. Clients should check with their local CSO before seeking treatment.

GAU (General Assistance for the Unemployable)

This is short-term coverage. Those who apply for GAU may also need to apply for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) which is a federal financial assistance program for people who have long-term disabilities. DSHS will direct clients in the process. If GAU clients are employable and want treatment, they should go to their local CSO to determine eligibility for treatment funded through ADATSA (see page 10). If not employable, they can go directly to the treatment program to apply for services. King County treatment programs have public funds to treat clients with GAU coupons. The amount of funds varies by agency.

GAU coupons do not pay for treatment directly. They may, however, qualify clients for other King County funding.

How do clients get medical coupons?

Clients must apply at their local DSHS Community Service Office. For tips on navigating the DSHS system, see page 83 in the Appendix.

How do clients with medical coupons access treatment?

Medicaid clients with active CNP or GAX coupons do not have to contact the CSO first. For outpatient treatment, they can contact any outpatient treatment program directly. For inpatient treatment, they can contact any inpatient treatment program directly or get a referral from an outpatient program.

For a list of CSO locations and the zip codes they serve, see page 83.
For outpatient treatment, clients should contact any treatment agency to schedule an assessment. At the assessment, clients should tell the agency what coupon type they have or when their CSO appointment is. The agency will guide them with specific instructions.

OPTION #5 - TANF (Temporary Assistance to Needy Families)
The TANF program provides a combination of federal and state funds to pay for substance use treatment services for parents or children in families who meet financial eligibility criteria. TANF clients usually have medical coupons. To apply for TANF, families should contact their local DSHS office (CSO). Treatment on demand is available for TANF clients with medical coupons.

OPTION #6 - ADATSA
ADATSA stands for Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Treatment and Support Act. It provides funding for drug/alcohol treatment and may include a living stipend for up to three months for individuals who cannot work or stay employed due to their alcohol or drug use. *This section reflects 2006 changes in ADATSA protocols.

Who is eligible for ADATSA?
Clients may be eligible if they:
- are at least 18 years old
- have no or little income (verified by a DSHS case manager
- are diagnosed with alcohol or drug dependency by an ADATSA assessment counselor
- have used alcohol or drugs within 90 days prior to assessment
- stay involved in drug/alcohol treatment

What will ADATSA pay for?
- Treatment costs up to 180 days of inpatient and up to 90 days of outpatient. The treatment program may request extensions. Coverage may vary in other counties.
- A living allowance up to $339/month for clients in outpatient treatment may be available. The stipend is paid directly to the treatment agency as a protective payee. ADATSA does not pay a living stipend to clients receiving inpatient treatment.

- Medical coupons to cover basic health care.
- Food allowance (formerly called food stamps).

How do clients access ADATSA?
All clients must apply for ADATSA through their local DSHS Community Service Office (CSO). This includes referrals from sources such as detox, court systems or treatment facilities.

If clients do NOT already receive DSHS assistance, they must:
1. go to their local CSO (see page 83) to fill out a DSHS Public Assistance form to request services.
2. meet with a financial worker and an incapacity specialist who will determine financial need.
3. tell the worker they want treatment.
4. If clients are eligible for financial assistance, DSHS will then refer them to ADATSA staff at one of the six program sites below for a chemical dependency assessment.

- Center for Human Services (p 21) 206-362-7282
- Harborview Addictions (p 22) 206-744-9600
- Recovery Centers of King County (p 22)
  - Kent 253-854-6513
  - Seattle 206-322-2970
- Seattle Counseling Services (p 23) 206-323-1768
- Seattle Indian Health Board (p 23) 206-834-4029
- Therapeutic Health Services (p 24)
  - Bellevue 425-747-7892
  - Shoreline/Midvale 206-546-9766
  - Seattle/Summit 206-323-0930
  - Seattle/Seneca 206-323-0934
  - Seattle/Rainier 206-723-1980

If clients already receive DSHS assistance, they can self-refer to one of the agencies above for an assessment. Clients should also notify their DSHS case worker or ask the ADATSA staff to notify DSHS.
What is an assessment?
This is an interview during which a chemical dependency counselor will evaluate the client’s substance use patterns and need for treatment. The counselor will look at history and severity of substance use, previous treatment attempts, present support systems, motivation for recovery, etc. Afterwards, the counselor will recommend the most appropriate treatment plan and arrange placement at an appropriate treatment program.

Can clients choose where they go for treatment?
Clients can request a specific treatment agency, but ADATSA will only pay for treatment in a program with an ADATSA contract. Because of agency waitlists, clients may not get their first choice if they need to enter treatment right away.

Can clients get into detox through ADATSA?
Yes. If the ADATSA staff determines that detox services are needed prior to entering outpatient or inpatient treatment, they will coordinate a detox admit date with the intake supervisor at the detox center.

How many times can clients go to treatment?
Treatment is limited to 180 days in a 24-month period, no matter how many episodes. Individual exceptions to policy may be granted as clinically appropriate. If clients decide to leave treatment against the advice of the treatment program, they may need to begin the assessment process over again in order to re-enter treatment. Clients should reapply at the CSO. They may also have to re-apply for other benefits.

OPTION #7 - Treatment Expansion
Beginning July 1, 2005, King County received additional funds from the WA State Division of Alcohol and Substance Abuse (DASA) to expand treatment capacity. At this time, treatment expansion is specifically for non-ADATSA clients and includes those individuals receiving SSI, GAX, TANF, and to a lesser degree GAU.

How is treatment expansion different from ADATSA?
ADATSA pays a living stipend to clients while they are in treatment. Because treatment expansion clients already receive a monthly income through SSI, GAX, GAU, or TANF, treatment expansion will pay only for treatment. Treatment expansion clients cannot also utilize ADATSA funds.
What services will treatment expansion cover?
The program will cover both outpatient and inpatient treatment. It does not pay for detox, although other public funds are usually available for detox.

If a client has a medical coupon with a spend-down, treatment expansion funds cannot be used until the spend-down is paid. Ask the treatment agency about other low-income options.

How do clients access treatment expansion funds?
If clients already have medical coupons, they can go directly to the treatment center for a chemical dependency assessment to start treatment. If clients do not have medical coupons, they should go to their local DSHS CSO. After clients complete a Medical Assistance application, the CSO will refer them to a treatment program. The process is the same for both adults and youth. Many treatment programs will assist youth in applying for this benefit.

For treatment expansion questions or access issues, please contact Jim Vollendroff at 206-205-1312.

OTHER ASSISTANCE: Access to Recovery
Access to Recovery (ATR) is a program designed to reduce practical barriers to drug treatment. ATR does not pay for treatment itself, but for the resources clients need to make it easier to get into and stay in treatment. Low income adults who are in treatment or ready to enter treatment can receive up to eight months of ATR assistance to support their recovery. These services include:

- case management
- food, clothing, and household supplies
- housing
- medical/dental care
- mental health care
- peer and family support
- spiritual counseling
- transportation
- vocational/employment services

Who is eligible for ATR assistance?
To receive funding, clients must meet ALL of the following criteria:

- low income
- 18 years of age or older
- screened by an ATR referral agency
Paying for Adult Treatment

- diagnosed as chemically dependent
- currently in treatment or abusing drugs or alcohol within the past 90 days
- motivated to recover from addiction

How can clients be referred for ATR services?
A client can be referred by a counselor or case manager at publicly-funded outpatient, detox, or drug court programs. Clients who have not entered treatment but who have case managers at Child Protective Services, Health Care for the Homeless, REACH, or POCAAN may also be referred by those case managers.

The referring agencies will contact their designated Recovery Support Specialist to arrange for an intake.

NOTE: At the time of publication, continued funding for ATR is uncertain. Funding may end as early as August 2007.

ADULT TREATMENT PROGRAMS

These listings are for King County only

The following facilities accept public funding. There are other private treatment programs available in King County that accept insurance and private pay only. To locate those resources, check your local area phone book or call the Alcohol/Drug 24-Hour Help Line at 206-722-3700 or 1-800-562-1240.

There are many differences between program costs, funding options, program content and treatment philosophy. Some treatment centers have unique areas of expertise or work with special populations. It’s best to call the treatment facility directly to find the best fit for clients.
MEDICAL DETOX

The answers to the following questions apply to Recovery Centers of King County ONLY!
For information or questions regarding other facilities, please contact them at the numbers listed.

How do clients get into detox?
Clients can call the facility to get an appointment or they can go through their local DSHS office for an ADATSA referral.

How long will clients have to wait to get in?
Clients who refer themselves will usually go on a waiting list. Wait time averages approximately 3-5 days. If clients are referred by ADATSA, a treatment agency or a case manager, they may get a sooner admit date. No walk-ins are accepted.

How long can clients stay?
The typical stay is 3 days for alcohol and 5 days for opiates. Clients whose withdrawal is complicated by multiple substances, medical or mental health conditions, or who require assistance with treatment placement may need to stay longer.

Does detox handle all drugs of abuse?
Priority is given to opiates and alcohol due to medical issues during withdrawal. Clients addicted to prescription medications will be staffed by medical personnel and may be accepted with a medical release from a doctor. Cocaine, crack, and methamphetamine users usually do not require medical detox but may be admitted if space is available.

What if clients leave early?
If clients leave early and then later want to come back into detox or go to treatment, they may be referred to their local DSHS office first for an ADATSA assessment.

How can clients pay for detox?
Detox is covered by CNP, GAU, GAX, TANF, and all Title XIX medical coupons. If clients have private insurance, they should check with their carrier to see if the plan covers detox services. A deposit may be required upon entry into detox pending confirmation of coverage by the insurance carrier. Clients can also self-pay.
How much does detox cost?
Detox costs $250 a day. Alcohol detox averages 3 days, and $750 is due upon admission. Opiate detox averages 5 days and $1250 is due upon admission. Remaining balances may be billed.

What happens if a client misses an appointment to get into detox?
If clients miss their appointment they may be put back on the waiting list at the bottom or put on a stand-by appointment. Clients who are unable to arrive on time for their appointment must contact the facility as soon as possible to determine if a late arrival can be accepted.

How many times can clients go into detox?
If clients go into detox 3 times in a 12-month period, they may be referred to the chronic services division of the involuntary commitment department. This division will assess reasons behind the client’s repeated admissions. Clients may be referred to a long-term residential facility for more intensive support.

Can clients go into treatment after detox?
Yes. In fact, going into treatment is highly encouraged, and the staff at detox will help with this. ADATSA staff are available at the facility to assist clients seeking ADATSA-funded treatment.

OPIATE SUBSTITUTE TREATMENT

Opiate substitutes are prescription drugs used to treat opiate (heroin, oxycodone, percocet, etc.) addiction. The two most common substitutes are buprenorphine and methadone. Although they both control opiate craving and withdrawal sickness, they are dispensed very differently.

Buprenorphine
Buprenorphine can be used for both detox and long-term treatment. Doctors can treat patients with buprenorphine in their own offices just like other chronic illnesses. To prescribe buprenorphine, physicians are required to have special training or be certified as addiction specialists. By law, doctors can treat only 30 patients at one time. So some qualified doctors may not be taking new patients at a given time.

Medicaid will pay for limited treatment, as will some (but not many) insurance companies. Other than Medicaid, there is no public funding for buprenorphine, so interested clients will need to self-pay. Buprenorphine may cost $350 or more per month, depending on the dose. To find more information and a physician who can prescribe buprenorphine in Washington State, visit www.buprenorphine.samhsa.gov.

Methadone
Methadone is dispensed on a daily basis only by licensed methadone clinics. Because methadone is a controlled substance, it is highly regulated by federal, state and local governments. Methadone treatment includes counseling and medical monitoring in addition to medication.

Outside a treatment setting, doctors may prescribe methadone to manage pain. They cannot prescribe methadone to treat opiate dependency.

Contact treatment agency
How can clients get on methadone?
Getting admitted to a methadone clinic is somewhat different than other programs. Eligibility requirements are set by federal and state law. Additional requirements may be established by individual treatment agencies. To be admitted to methadone treatment, clients must:

- Be 18 years of age or older (parental/guardian permission required for 17 year olds).
- Demonstrate current physiological dependency on opiates. At intake, treatment medical staff will examine clients to observe signs and symptoms of opiate withdrawal. This is often called the “sick intake physical.” Clients should not use heroin or other opiates for 24 hours prior to the sick physical. Clients will receive the first methadone dose after passing the sick physical. NOTE: A sick physical is not required for pregnant women and may be waived for incarcerated persons entering treatment directly after release.
- Provide photo ID (does not need to be WA State-issued).

To receive treatment for more than 180 days, clients need documentation of at least one year’s history of opiate dependence. Documentation may include prior treatment records, medical records or testamentary letters.

Before readmitting a client, a treatment agency may consider space availability and prior treatment experience. If a client still owes money from prior treatment, the agency may require payment or negotiate a payment plan as a condition for re-entry. Similarly, prior discharge status and counselor recommendations at the time of discharge may be considered.

How much does methadone cost?
Methadone treatment costs about $300-$325 per month. This fee covers the cost of the daily methadone dose, counseling, medical assessment and medical monitoring. There may be additional costs for missed appointments. Usually, methadone treatment is not provided on a sliding fee scale. Some treatment agencies provide additional clinical services such as acupuncture which are billed separately from treatment fees.
How can clients pay for methadone?
There are several options for funding methadone:

Medical Coupons
Only certain types of medical coupons will pay for methadone treatment (see table below). Medicaid/Title XIX clients can use their medical coupons to pay for methadone. T/H/S and Evergreen are approved Medicaid/Title XIX providers. By law, clients who receive Medicaid may not self-pay for methadone services.

Vouchers
If clients do not have immediate resources, they can be placed on a waiting list to receive methadone treatment vouchers. Vouchers are a funding source of last resort. Eligibility requirements, amount of coverage (full or partial support) and length of coverage vary by fund source. Clients must reside (or be homeless) somewhere within King County. Vouchers may be redeemed at T/H/S or Evergreen clinics.

Demand for vouchers exceeds funding levels, so Public Health maintains a centralized wait list through its needle exchange program. Wait times may vary from 6 to 19 months. Once a voucher has been issued, a client can usually get into treatment within a week or two.

To get on the voucher wait list, clients should go to a Public Health Needle Exchange site to sign up in person or call Adrienne Anderson (Public Health case manager) at 206-205-1074. Locations and hours of needle exchange operation are available online at www.metrokc.gov/health/apu/resources/needle.htm or by calling the HIV/STD Hotline at 206-205-7837 or 1-800-678-1595.

Opiate Replacement Treatment Program (ORTP)
This is a funding program for people who have HIV or AIDS. To be eligible, clients must be opiate dependent, be HIV-positive, reside in King County, have a primary medical provider, and have an income at or below 200% of federal poverty level. ORTP funds are provided by Title I of the Ryan White CARE Act. By law, Ryan White funds may be used only as a last resort. Many clients who are HIV-positive enter treatment with ORTP funds, then transfer to Title XIX (Medicaid). Most ORTP clients enter treatment within one or two weeks. ORTP referrals are accepted at T/H/S and Evergreen. To obtain an ORTP referral, call:

- Olivette Foster, POCAAN — 206-322-7061 x 213
- Joan Clement, Harborview Madison Clinic — 206-731-5162
- Adrienne Anderson, Public Health Needle Exchange — 206-205-1074

Other Public Fund Sources
T/H/S and Evergreen each receive a limited amount of federal and state funding for low- or no-income clients seeking methadone treatment. These slots are usually reserved for clients who receive GAU or ADATSA benefits.

Veterans Benefits
The VA Medical Center in Seattle operates a methadone program for opiate dependent veterans. Enrollment capacity is limited, but they do keep a waiting list. Call 206-764-2457 for more information.

Private Pay
Clients may self-pay for methadone treatment, but advanced payment is required, usually in monthly or bi-monthly installments. Clients who are Title XIX eligible may not self-pay treatment costs, even when a Title XIX slot is not available.

Private Insurance
Some private insurance companies cover methadone treatment so clients should check with their insurance carrier. Washington State Basic Health Plan (BHP) does cover methadone. However, if the client was dependent on opiates prior to enrolling in BHP (i.e., dependency is a pre-existing condition), there is a 9-month wait before coverage begins.

SUPPORT GROUPS

Twelve Step Groups
The Twelve-Step model emphasizes connection with a “higher power” as the central support for recovery. While not a religious program, it promotes a “12-step” spiritual path supported by the fellowship of others in recovery. Meetings take place daily and are often tailored to special interests such as Alcoholics Anonymous, Cocaine Anonymous, Narcotics Anonymous, Crystal Meth Anonymous, etc. In addition, there are meetings for special groups such as non-smokers, women, people with HIV, gays and lesbians, to name a few. Information about local 12-step groups can be found below.

Secular Organizations for Sobriety (SOS)
Formerly called “Rational Recovery” or “Rational Sobriety,” SOS is a recovery model for those uncomfortable with the spiritual content of 12-Step programs. SOS emphasizes personal responsibility and self-reliance in maintaining abstinence. SOS respects any recovery path that people choose to support their own abstinence. There is one meeting in King County:

Sundays, 4:30 pm
Schick Shadel Hospital - downstairs

SMART Recovery
SMART stands for “Self Management and Recovery Training.” It adopts a cognitive behavioral approach to abstinence and offers a set of skills and tools to manage cravings and reframe thought patterns. SMART meetings are discussion meetings, and there are no sponsors or labels such as “alcoholic” or “addict”. There is one meeting in King County:

Saturdays, 7:00 pm
Schick Shadel Hospital
12101 Ambaum Boulevard SW
Seattle, WA 98145

LifeRing
LifeRing is another secular approach that encourages participants to develop their own particular recovery paths and to use a group for support. Local meetings include:

Wednesdays, 7:00 pm
Schick Shadel Hospital
2101 Ambaum Boulevard SW
Seattle, WA 98145

Seattle, WA 98103

Strength Over Speed
These groups are specifically for gay and bisexual men recovering from crystal meth addiction. Groups are peer-led and encourage participants to choose their own models for recovery. Meetings focus on open discussion and peer support for issues such as preventing relapse, reclaiming drug-free sexuality, and self-acceptance. The meeting schedule is updated regularly on www.homohealth.org. Current meetings include:

Mondays, 2:30 pm

Support Groups

Breaking the Chains
The People of Color Against AIDS Network offers a variety of harm reduction, pre-treatment and recovery support groups for men and women of color and their families. Currently there are groups of African-Americans, Latinos (in Spanish), Native Americans, and individuals with hepatitis C. Although the groups are primarily for participants in POCAAN’s Breaking the Chains Program (see page 45), they are open to community members. Call POCAAN at 206-322-7061 for a current schedule of groups.
SPECIAL POPULATIONS

People Living With HIV/AIDS
Problematic drug use or dependence can present difficult challenges for people who are HIV-positive. Clients must deal with complex medication interactions, psycho-social aspects of HIV, sexuality and sexual safety, and how all of these issues interact with alcohol and drug use. There are many programs in King County to help HIV-positive clients coordinate treatment services with demanding health maintenance and medical treatment regimens.

To maximize treatment effectiveness, pre-treatment planning and close coordination between the client’s HIV/AIDS case manager and the treatment program are critical.

Hepatitis/AIDS Substance Abuse Program (HASAP)
This is a state program that funds treatment support services for low-income people who have HIV, AIDS, and/or hepatitis C. In King County, HASAP contracts with Sea Mar Behavioral Health Clinic to provide:
- chemical dependency assessments
- assistance in placement to drug treatment
- support groups for clients and their families
- advocacy during and after treatment

Treatment slots in this program are limited. For more information and to access HASAP services, contact Rodslyn Kenney at Sea Mar 206-878-7393 or by pager 206-642-0007.

Opiate Replacement Treatment Program (ORTP)
This program provides methadone treatment for people who are opiate dependent and HIV-positive. To qualify, clients must reside in King County, have an income at or below 200% of Federal Poverty Level, and be engaged in primary medical care. Services are provided at Evergreen and T/H/S. For a referral, contact Olivette Foster at 206-322-7061 x213, Joan Clement at 206-731-5162, or Adrienne Anderson at 206-205-1074.
Northwest Family Center (NWFC)
The Northwest Family Center serves HIV-positive women and their families. NWFC has a chemical dependency professional who helps clients access chemical dependency treatment and community recovery groups. NWFC also provides free use management education, relapse prevention counseling, and aftercare planning. For more information call 206-731-3066.

Seattle Counseling Services (SCS)
Seattle Counseling Services provides assessments and individual and group counseling for HIV-positive clients who need substance use treatment. Slots are very limited, so call SCS for availability at 206-323-1768.

Project NEON
Project NEON is an HIV prevention program that provides free recovery and use management support for gay and bisexual men who use methamphetamine. Services include individual counseling, support groups, structured recovery groups, and after-care support. All services are provided at Seattle Counseling Services. Call 206-323-1768 or go to www.crystalneon.org for more information.

Medicaid
Many HIV-positive clients qualify for Medicaid funding. Several Medicaid programs cover drug treatment costs. See the “Paying for Treatment” section for details.

Pregnant and Parenting Women
Pregnant and parenting women (PPW) are considered a priority population for chemical dependency services. Therefore, access to treatment and funding are readily available. There are several outpatient, inpatient, and residential treatment facilities with special PPW programs. Check the resource listings for information.

MOMS Plus
Public Health nurses and case managers work with pregnant and parenting women who are low income to improve health care and service access. Services include:
• assistance in accessing drug treatment
• case management from pregnancy through one year post-partum
• pre- and perinatal health education
• linkages to community, legal, housing, mental health, and parenting resources
MOMS staff also provide outreach in King County jails. All services are free for eligible, low income women. To make a referral, contact MOMS at:

Elderly and Disabled

Evergreen Community Healthcare (ECHC) provides intervention services to elderly and disabled persons with co-occurring disorders. They provide mental health and substance use evaluation, brief counseling, and referrals, all within the client’s home environment. ECHC works closely with Therapeutic Health Services to coordinate other substance abuse services as needed.

Who is eligible for these services?

- people 60 years of age or older
- people 18 years of age and older who are financially and functionally eligible for Title XIX CORE (COPES), Medicaid Personal Care (MPC), or Chore Service

In addition, eligible persons must:

- be “difficult-to-serve” and have mental health and substance abuse issues
- reside in King County
- not reside in a skilled nursing facility

What does “difficult to serve” mean?

“Difficult to serve” clients include individuals who:

- are reclusive and need, but refuse, medical, mental health, or substance use services
- due to mental health and/or substance abuse problems, deteriorate suddenly or change behaviors which put them at risk of hospitalization
- are at risk in personal safety, nutrition, survival and self-neglect
- are of uncertain competency and unable to handle their own affairs
- have depression, abuse, domestic violence issues, grief or loss

What services are provided?

ECHC provides the following consultant and evaluation services:

- comprehensive in-home client evaluation and brief counseling
• care planning and consulting with mental health professionals or case managers
• medication review with the client’s physician
• advice and consultation on guardianship issues, evaluation of clients’ capacity for decision-making, financial management, and protective payee services
• coordination of substance use services

To make a referral, contact the Geriatric Regional Assessment Team at ECHC: 206-923-6300 or 1-800-548-0558.
PRE-TREATMENT/HARM REDUCTION PROGRAMS

Harm reduction programs can be very effective channels for early intervention in drug use management and drug treatment. There are many programs that work with clients who are actively using and not yet ready or able to stop. Most of these programs provide health and substance use education along with referrals to financial, housing, medical, and other social services. More importantly, they are often the first place clients will go for help when they are ready for drug treatment.

Needle Exchange

Operated by Public Health and Street Outreach Services, needle exchange is available at seven sites throughout the Seattle area every day of the year. In addition to one-for-one syringe exchange, clients have access to sterile injection equipment, condoms, and print and in-person education on safer injecting and prevention of HIV, STDs, and hepatitis. Staff also give referrals to detox, drug treatment, opiate substitution treatment, and a variety of social and health services. The downtown needle exchange maintains the centralized wait list for methadone vouchers.

At the downtown site, clients can also receive care for wounds, abscess, vaccinations, HIV/hepatitis testing, and minor medical conditions at the on-site medical clinic operated by Healthcare for the Homeless.

You can access the most current needle exchange schedule at: www.metrokc.gov/health/apu/resources/needle.htm.

Street Outreach Services (SOS)

SOS provides a wide range of support services for active and recovering drug users which include:

- weekly support groups for sex workers and for current and former addicts (peer-led)
- outreach and distribution of condoms, hygiene kits, health information, and referrals in downtown Seattle
- outreach and case management with women involved in sex work
- outreach and case management with adults at risk for drug arrests in Rainier Beach
- case management, referrals and advocacy to pregnant women and women with infants through the Infant Mortality Project
- case management and resource linkages for street-involved youth on Capitol Hill
For more information about these and other programs, contact Street Outreach Services:

Project NEON
Project NEON is an HIV prevention program that provides free counseling and education for gay and bisexual men who use methamphetamine. Services include individual drug use and risk reduction counseling, support groups, peer education with secondary needle exchange, condom distribution, and access to HIV/STD testing. All services are provided at Seattle Counseling Services for Sexual Minorities. Call 206-323-1768 or visit www.crystalneon.org for more information.

Breaking the Chains
Breaking the Chains is a program of the People of Color Against AIDS Network (POCAAN). It is designed to improve the health of racial/ethnic minority substance users while facilitating movement towards drug treatment. Clients must be 18 years or older, have been incarcerated in the last two years, and identify as a person of color or racial/ethnic minority. Program components are free and include:
- weekly support groups for both active and recovering drug users and their families
- individual harm reduction and substance use counseling
- coordination of wrap-around services
- vouchers for up to one year of outpatient treatment

Referrals can be made by calling POCAAN at 206-322-7061.

Detox/Stabilization
Since this level of care is not considered treatment, youth 13 and older may admit themselves to detox. A parent or guardian should be involved if at all possible. Foster care youth may not be admitted to detox sites that are mixed-age facilities. These include Recovery Centers of King County and Lakeside-Milam sites in King County.

Can a youth refuse detox services?
Detox services are voluntary and therefore usually involve youth who are willing to be admitted for crisis stabilization. Some youth who are less willing may be admitted with support of an adult family member, guardian, or referent.

Outpatient
Youth 13 or older may request outpatient services without parental consent. For minors aged 13 to 17, treatment programs must notify parents of the minor’s request for treatment within seven days, and the minor must sign a release for this notification. The agency can determine the youth’s capacity to make a rational choice about consent.

Best clinical practice is to involve the parent/guardian as quickly as possible, unless the youth expresses concern over his/her safety after parental notification.

Can a youth refuse outpatient services?
A parent may bring a youth for an assessment, and the consent of a minor is not required. However, youth must sign a release of information to have assessment information released to a parent. Youth can refuse to release their assessment results. In this case, the treatment agency will make every effort to negotiate a resolution.

Inpatient
Parental consent for inpatient treatment is required for anyone under the age of 18. There is one exception: inpatient programs may admit youth as “self-consenters” without parental consent if they meet the definition of a Child in Need of Services.
To meet this definition, the youth must:

- meet medical necessity for inpatient treatment, and
- have parents/guardians who refuse or who are unwilling or unable to consent.

Usually these youth are on the street or in very limited contact with family. The inpatient program will attempt to locate and engage the parents in the treatment process. If legal custody is held by DSHS, the inpatient program will work with DSHS caseworkers to obtain consent for treatment.

Can a youth refuse inpatient services?

Consent of a minor is not required for admission into inpatient treatment. This is often called a “parent-initiated” admission, before or after which the minor will be encouraged to sign a consent form. Some youth may need a period of engagement and support to cooperate with this process. Youth cannot leave the program without parental notification and permission.

At-Risk Youth Petitions

An At-Risk Youth (ARY) petition is a tool designed to give parents some legal assistance in setting guidelines for their out-of-control or runaway youth after all other reasonable efforts have been made. An at-risk youth is a minor under the age of 18 who:

- is absent from home for more than 72 consecutive hours;
- or
- is beyond parental control such that the youth’s behavior endangers him/herself or another person; or
- has a substance abuse problem for which there are no pending criminal charges.

Only a parent can file an ARY. DASA will help parents submit an ARY petition with the local Department of Children and Family Services (DCFS) office. A Family Reconciliation Services caseworker will assist parents file the petition with Juvenile Court.

If the ARY is granted after a fact-finding hearing, the courts set conditions for the youth to follow. These usually include

It is always best to involve youth in the decision to enter treatment. There are times when admitting adolescents without their consent is necessary; however, gaining their agreement will empower them to be a part of their own recovery process.
Youth and Parental Consent

regular school attendance, counseling, or participation in out-patient substance abuse programs. The ARY process often helps families resolve conflict and facilitates participation in needed services, including substance use treatment.

For questions about ARY petitions related to chemical dependency treatment, contact Ruth Leonard at DASA at 360-725-3742.
PAYING FOR TREATMENT

There are several options to help pay for some or all program costs. These options include private pay, private insurance, and public assistance. Not every treatment program accepts the same types of payment or funding. Before you make a referral, call the treatment program to make sure it accepts the types of resources available to your client.

Each agency that contracts with King County or directly with DASA is responsible for determining a youth’s clinical and financial eligibility for treatment.

OPTION #1 - Private Pay
The private pay costs for inpatient and outpatient programs vary as do the lengths of stay. It’s best to call an agency directly for an estimate of costs.

Most outpatient and residential programs for youth offer a sliding fee scale. Often it includes a combination of private funding and state or county funding, but the family must meet financial guidelines or request an exception to policy. Many programs also offer payment plans.

OPTION #2 - Private Insurance
Insurance benefits vary greatly depending on the type of coverage. If parents have insurance, do not assume that it covers alcohol and drug treatment or their first choice of treatment programs. A managed care plan will specify where and what type of treatment it covers. Non-managed care plans will place a limit on the type and amount of coverage. Parents should call the insurance carrier to verify coverage and obtain pre-authorization for services. At DASA-contracted youth residential facilities, insurance benefits are the first resource used by providers. Then if families qualify, state funding resources may be used on a limited basis. Many outpatient programs also accept insurance.

OPTION #3 - Medical Coupons
Youth who have Medicaid/Title XIX medical coupons are eligible for inpatient services. CNP coupons will cover outpatient services. If the coupon is not a CNP coupon, the agency can determine if it covers treatment.

Youth who are on medical coupons are eligible for DASA-funded programs (see Option #5). Youth who are low-income and do not have medical insurance may be eligible for medical coupons due to income or because they will have been out of the home for up to ninety days (includes time on the street, in jail, or time planned for residential treatment).

OPTION #4 - Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF)
The TANF program provides a combination of federal and state funds to pay for substance use treatment services for parents or children in families who meet financial eligibility criteria. Generally these families receive medical coupons through TANF which may cover treatment costs. To apply for TANF, families should go to their local DSHS office.

OPTION #5 - Division of Alcohol and Substance Abuse (DASA)
DASA is part of the Department of Social and Health Services (DSHS). DSHS certifies the chemical dependency agencies in Washington State. DSHS provides funding to counties and tribes for outpatient treatment and directly funds some detox, inpatient, and long-term residential programs. DASA provides funding for low- or no-income families who:
- do not have medical coupons
- have a child already on medical coupons
- have health insurance that may not cover inpatient treatment

Other family resources such as insurance or personal funds may be used in combination with partial DASA funding. Arrangements can be made directly with the treatment provider.

OPTION #6 - Treatment Expansion
Treatment expansion funding was made available starting July 1, 2005. It is meant to increase access to outpatient and residential treatment for Medicaid-eligible adults and youth as well as low-income, non-Medicaid youth. Youth treatment expansion funds are earmarked for youth who are under 200% of the federal poverty level. Treatment on demand is available for all low-income youth clients.

For treatment expansion questions or access issues, please contact Jim Vollendorff at 206-205-1312.

OPTION #7 - ADATSA
ADATSA recipients must be 18 years or older. See page 10 for program description.
OTHER ASSISTANCE: Transportation Assistance/Family Hardship Program
This program assists families of youth admitted to DASA-funded detox and inpatient treatment programs. Funds are provided to families for travel and lodging costs so that they may fully participate in the family treatment program. Families at the lowest income level with the least amount of resources who are required to travel more than 50 miles one way to attend treatment activities are eligible. Priority is given for travel that is clinically required. DASA reimburses residential providers who, in turn, directly reimburse families.
The following facilities are limited to those that accept public funding. There are other private treatment programs available in King County that accept insurance and private pay only. To locate those resources, check your local area phone book or call the Alcohol/Drug 24-Hour Help Line at 1-800-562-1240.

There are many differences between program costs, funding options, program content and treatment philosophy. Some treatment centers have unique areas of expertise or work with special populations. It’s best to call the treatment facility directly to find the best fit for clients.

DETOX/CRISIS STABILIZATION

Detox/crisis stabilization provides a temporary, protective environment for at-risk or runaway youth. Services are available to youth ages 13-17 who are experiencing:

- harmful effects of intoxication and/or withdrawal from alcohol/other drugs
- potential to be a clear and present danger to themselves or others due to their alcohol/drug use, withdrawal or associated emotional and behavioral problems
- co-existing or undetermined mental health symptoms. Detox may be needed to make an accurate assessment of treatment needs.

Youth under 13 or over 17 may be served based on clinical need and availability of age-appropriate services.

Detox/crisis stabilization is a short-term service. It does not provide treatment, but for many, it is a needed start. The programs listed below can help clients obtain longer-term treatment services upon release.

There are sites in Mt. Vernon, Tacoma, and Olympia that are open to King County youth as well.
OUTPATIENT PROGRAMS

King County has a large outpatient provider network. Outpatient agencies provide chemical dependency assessments and alcohol/drug treatment for youth ages 10 to 20. They may also provide support services and counseling to family members. Outpatient treatment programs are designed to diagnose, stabilize, counsel and build supportive family and social systems.

INPATIENT PROGRAMS

Resources for low-income and Medicaid-eligible youth are distributed statewide, so youth do not have to receive treatment in the same county where they reside. There are no restrictions on in-county or out-of-county referrals.

Inpatient/residential services are for youth ages 13 through 17. Youth under 13 or over 17 may be admitted to some youth inpatient treatment programs based on clinical assessment. In some cases, youth 18 or older may be referred to ADATSA for placement in an adult treatment program.

Inpatient treatment is available at two levels of clinical need:

Level I: Basic Inpatient Treatment

Level I programs are appropriate for youth with primary addiction problems who do not need intensive therapeutic intervention for other disorders such as mental health issues or aggressive behavior.

Length of stay is variable, but the maximum stay is 60 days with some exceptions.

Level I programs may admit youth who meet some of the clinical characteristics of a Level II client based on clinical assessment and the program's ability to meet the needs of the youth and the youth's family.

Level II: Intensive Inpatient Treatment

Level II programs are appropriate for youth who need more clinical intervention and behavior management.

Level II provides more intensive services for youth ages 13 through 17 who are chemically dependent and meet one or more of the following criteria:

- mental health disorder (or potential disorder)
- extreme family dysfunction
- prior emotional, physical and/or sexual abuse
- pose a major risk of danger to self and/or others
- high risk to not complete treatment

Youth under 13 or age 18 may be admitted to some youth inpatient treatment programs based on clinical assessment.

Level II programs may serve youth who fit Level I, but Level II clients have priority for assessment and admission.
Youth who have a history of serious criminal activity or assaultive behavior may be refused admission to treatment. Such refusals must be reviewed by the Washington State Division of Alcohol and Substance Abuse (DASA). Contact Robert Leonard, DASA Region IV Treatment Manager, at 206-272-2188.

Length of stay is longer than Level I treatment: 45 to 90 days on average and up to 120 days. Exceptions to length of stay guidelines may be made based on clinical need.

Level II chemical dependency and mental health staff are also trained in developmental issues, abuse, aggression, and behavior management.

Level II programs provide security for both buildings and grounds. This may include alarms on doors and windows, time-delay outside doors, and/or perimeter fencing.

How do you refer youth to inpatient treatment?

It is best to refer youth to an outpatient facility for the initial assessment. Inpatient facilities will conduct assessments for DASA-eligible youth without cost. Youth who are admitted to inpatient programs will be referred back to the local outpatient program for continuing support after inpatient.

Youth treatment beds are limited, so there may be wait lists. DASA and contracted agencies will prioritize admissions for youth who are pregnant, intravenous drug users, homeless, without an available parent/guardian, and/or requiring direct transfer from a youth detox/stabilization bed.

DASA also contracts for recovery house services for youth needing longer recovery support after completing inpatient treatment. Recovery house treatment is available for youth ages 13 through 17 who:
- have completed inpatient chemical dependency treatment, and
- cannot immediately live with their legal guardians, parents, foster parents, relatives, or other out-of-home placement.

Youth age 18 to 20 may be admitted based on clinical assessment.

Recovery house programs provide structure, supervision, continued treatment emphasizing long-term abstinence, and living, education and employment skills.

There are currently no youth recovery house beds located in King County, but there are 37 beds in other parts of the state. See page 59 for resources.
THERAPEUTIC/DRUG COURTS

The King County court system has designed special courts to help defendants with substance use problems or help families in which substance use is causing problems. There are two types of courts. Drug Courts serve adults and juveniles with substance use problems who have been arrested on certain drug-related charges. Treatment Courts provide substance use assessment and treatment to families involved in Dependency Court (custody cases) and to youth in the juvenile justice system who have substance use and mental health issues.

Adult Drug Court

The King County Drug Diversion Court is a pre-sentencing program that provides eligible defendants the choice to receive drug treatment instead of jail time. Defendants are required to attend drug treatment, undergo random urinalysis, and appear before the drug court judge regularly.

Drug court has three “levels” of treatment intensity. Participants must complete each level before graduating from the program. Once all requirements are met, charges are dismissed. If defendants fail to make progress, they are terminated from the program and sentenced on the original charge.

Eligible crimes include:
- Possession of a Controlled Substance
- Forged Prescription
- Solicitation to Deliver a Controlled Substance
- Delivery or Possession with Intent to Deliver Heroin, Cocaine, or Marijuana. (Drugs sold cannot exceed 0.5 grams and/or total sale cannot exceed $50)

Other eligibility conditions include:
- no unresolved felony charges at the time of filing other than the drug court-eligible drug charge
- no prior adult sex or violent offenses in the defendant’s criminal history
- chemical abuse

Eligibility requirements are subject to change, and additional restrictions and requirements apply. For additional information, contact King County Drug Diversion Court Services at 206-296-7884.
Who provides treatment?
Drug court contracts with several agencies throughout King County and Washington State to provide outpatient, in-patient, and opiate substitution treatment.

Can clients go to a treatment program that isn’t a drug court provider?
Yes. The treatment agency must be an accredited Washington State Chemical Dependency Treatment Agency. Also, the agency must agree to follow drug court policies and procedure for treatment. Clients are responsible for paying for their treatment at non-contracted agencies.

How much does treatment cost?
Drug court pays for treatment if it is provided by a contracted agency and the client qualifies as low-income. All clients must contribute $100 or complete 24 hours of community service before graduating from the program.

What happens if clients are struggling in the program?
If clients are not doing well in the program, they may, among other things, be required to do community service hours, attend drug court to observe, or do jail time. If clients do not come to court when required, the court may issue a “failure to appear” warrant for arrest. If clients use again, they will return to the previous level of treatment until they have achieved a sufficient period of sobriety again. If outpatient treatment does not meet their needs, clients may be referred to inpatient treatment.

Juvenile Drug Court
As with adults, some juveniles who have alcohol or drug problems and are charged with an offense can choose to waive their right to a trial and enter the juvenile drug court program. Juveniles in the program go to treatment, have frequent urinalyses, and appear regularly before the drug court judge to monitor progress. Advocacy teams are formed with the youth, family, and professionals to develop and support an effective treatment plan. The court may also require community service and participation in school or employment programs. If a juvenile successfully completes the program, the charges are dismissed. If requirements are not met, the judge will determine guilt or innocence of the original charge.

For more information, call the Juvenile Drug Court program at 206-205-7374.
Family Treatment Court (FTC)
Unlike drug court, participants in Family Treatment Court are not offenders. Participants are parents involved with Dependency Court (custody cases) and have had their children removed from the home as a result of parental drug or alcohol use. Parents who meet eligibility guidelines enter the program voluntarily and agree to increased court participation, drug treatment, and intense case management with wrap-around services designed to help parents reunite with their children. Involvement usually lasts one to two years.

How are parents referred to FTC?
Parents can be referred to the Family Treatment Court office at 206-205-9340.

What do FTC services cost?
There are no costs to participate, but there may be a charge for drug treatment based on income and funding source.

Juvenile Treatment Court
Juvenile Treatment Court is similar to the drug court program, only for juveniles with both drug/alcohol and mental health issues. Treatment court keeps the juvenile accountable to the court for an extended period of time while the youth attempts to work through substance abuse and mental health problems. In addition to following the drug court model, treatment court also involves the use of advocacy teams who work with the youth and family to develop and support an effective treatment plan. The plan usually includes chemical dependency treatment, mental health counseling, and youth mentors.

For more information, call the Juvenile Treatment Court at 206-205-9426.

WA State Department of Social and Health Services (DSHS)

DSHS provides a wide range of services and public assistance programs to no- and low-income individuals and families. Eligibility for each service depends on needs, ability to work, medical conditions, number of children, and many other factors.

What services does DSHS offer?
Services depend on income, if any, and an assessment by a DSHS case worker. Services provided include:

- cash assistance
- medical coupons
- referrals to publicly-funded drug/alcohol assessment and treatment (ADATSA)
- basic food assistance
- limited case management
- protective payee services

Clients should go to the local DSHS Community Service Office (CSO) in their zip code. Homeless clients can go to any CSO, but the Belltown CSO has the most expertise with this population. The Belltown CSO is located in downtown Seattle and is readily accessible by bus at no cost from anywhere in the downtown area.

When are CSOs open?
Clients may pick up or drop off applications and get general information from the front desk Monday through Friday, 8:00 am until 5:00 pm. To meet with a case worker, clients should schedule an appointment. Walk-in hours vary among the different CSOs. Call for specific CSO walk-in hours.

Mondays are usually the busiest day of the week. Wednesday is “paperwork day” for many CSOs. They do not see clients or answer phones on this day. For shorter waits, clients should go on a Tuesday or Thursday.

How do clients apply for benefits?
1. Complete an application. Clients can either pick up forms at any CSO, call the CSO and ask for a copy to be mailed, or download forms from the DSHS website www.dshs.wa.gov. Applications are available in multiple languages. Return the completed form to the local CSO.

2. Get all required documentation together. This includes a photo ID, social security card, proof of income or unemployment compensation, and proof of citizenship.

3. Have an interview. To make an appointment, call the local CSO (some have automated systems) or go in during the walk-in hours and try to be seen.

The first of the month is a bad time to apply for benefits. DSHS is very busy at this time!

What if clients are not United States citizens?
U.S. citizenship or a green card is required in order to receive treatment paid for by the state. Non-citizens who do not have a green card will not be eligible for treatment benefits through DSHS or ADATSA. Some agencies may be able to provide counseling services for those without proper documentation.

How long will clients have to wait to see someone?
In most cases, if clients have an appointment, they should be seen after a brief wait (20-30 minutes). If clients walk in without an appointment, they may wait an hour or two.

Encourage clients to make an appointment. Their wait will be much longer if they walk in.
Who can help clients through the process?
DSHS can provide office staff and interpreters for all languages to help clients complete paperwork. All offices have TTY or Voice Relay. Some community-based agencies that work with low-income clients, provide case management, or conduct street outreach can help clients complete forms and even accompany clients to DSHS offices. Clients should ask agencies for more information.

![Image: Don’t wait until the last minute to request an interpreter. This may delay the entire process.]

How long is the benefits approval process?
Clients may be told what they are eligible for right after meeting with a worker.

![Image: Encourage clients to keep ALL appointments and have all required documentation in place. These problems cause the longest delays in receiving benefits.]

What happens after benefits are approved?
Once in the system, clients will be assigned a financial worker. This is the person to call for most questions. If the financial worker does not have the answer, clients will be directed to someone else such as an incapacity specialist, social worker, SSI facilitator or another DSHS staff person. Financial workers can be reached by phone. Phone hours are usually 8:00 am until noon, but some workers set special phone times. Clients should leave a message if a call is not answered directly.

![Image: Encourage clients to keep a list of all the names and phone numbers of people they talk with and when they can be reached.]

What if clients lose their medical or food stamp cards?
Both cards can be reissued. Clients should contact their financial worker. ID is required to pick up the reissued cards. Without an ID, clients should notify their worker so that other arrangements can be made.

Can benefits be lost?
Clients will lose benefits if they:
- don’t respond to requests for information, interviews and/or documentation
- give false information
DSHS

- don’t complete the 6 month and annual review forms
- don’t report income they have received

Basic Food Assistance
A financial worker can determine client eligibility for the Basic Food Assistance program. Funds are issued via a DSHS debit card (replacing the old “food stamps”). Clients cannot use the card to purchase alcohol, cigarettes, or other non-foods items. In some residential facilities, clients may be asked to authorize the facility to use the debit cards on their behalf.
