

Metropolitan King County Council

2008 Council Membership on Outside Committees

May 5, 2008

The duties of King County Councilmembers extend far beyond their visible attendance at Council meetings in the Courthouse. State law requires them to serve on many regional governing boards in such critical areas as transportation, public health, criminal justice and other quality of life issues that cross jurisdictional boundaries. Councilmembers also serve and vote on other panels that consider the regional issues that affect the lives of their constituents.

This list updates and identifies the members who are representing the Council in 2008 on outside committees requiring Council participation, where much of their work is accomplished as regional elected officials.
